NEGRO IN THE WOODPILE.

Whatever other influences may have been operating against St. Louis in securing the National Republican Convention, the race line, which St. Louis draws so readily, was against us.

In securing the convention of 1896 this line stood in the way until pledges were given that all public places in St. Louis would be open alike to all. New Orleans was helped to defeat, in securing the Panama Exposition; by establishing "Jim Crow" cars in the city and thus uniting herself to act as hostess for the world. The Jamestown Exposition was a failure because Virginia "Jim Crowed" the Negro just as the exposition opened.

St. Louis has pending a segregation measure to be decided February 29. Had St. Louis been chosen and this measure passed, then for the first time the National Republican Convention would have met in a segregated city. What business has a Republican National Convention in a segregated city?

The history of the party is closely associated with the history of the Negro. They came up together. One was sponsor for the other. It would have been very humiliating to bring the colored constituency of the party here to be insulted and oppressed.

DECEMBER 18TH FREEDOM'S LEGAL DAY.

Fifty years ago, December 18, 1865, the great Thirteenth Constitutional Amendment became a law. This amendment was no sudden reform; it came through a struggle that lasted for a generation. It also came over battlefields, amidst the groans of the dying, rather like a blast from hell than a boon from heaven. But now this great amendment stands as a monument to the presiding genius in the conduct of the Civil War, and it also stands, permanently, as a result of the work accomplished by the efforts and speeches of Wm. Lloyd Garrison, Frederick Douglass and Wendell Phillips—and the cannon of General Grant.

History has no event grander than American emancipation; it has no character whose valency has reached such high points of excellence as those of the unsullied hero, Wm. Lloyd Garrison.

The Abolition Society, the assassination of Lovejoy, the John Brown insurrection, the Civil War, the Proclamation of Lincoln, all were stepping stones to the Thirteenth Amendment. This amendment is the fundamental proposition of all our civil and political rights. Out of it grew the educational privileges, and out of it came the Fourteenth Amendment, granting citizenship and making enfranchisement optional. It was against this optional clause of the Fourteenth Amendment that Frederick Douglass made a strong and manly protest. He insisted upon another, or the Fifteenth Amendment, making the right to vote in any manner or form not dependent upon any conditions where race or color could disqualify. For the reason that the Thirteenth Amendment is the first of the great war amendments, for the reason, also, that it places in our organic law the foundation of our freedom, we, therefore, should celebrate it, and regard December 18 as dating one of the most important events in the history of the American Negro.

A PLEA FOR UNITY IN THE FIGHT AGAINST SEGREGATION

The undoing of the colored people of this country has been their disposition not to work together—a tendency on the part of leaders to rule or ruin—all everybody-lead-and-nobody-follow spirit.

A great organization known as the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has been working and fighting for the rights of the colored people in this country; they have a membership of ten thousand, one-fourth of whom are white. They number among their official family great leaders in the realm of philanthropy and finance, men and women of national and international reputation. Its president is one of the greatest of this country's jurists, a man whose name means much even in the Supreme Court of the United States.

A branch of the organization has been working in St. Louis. They have been actively engaged in this city since September 1 in a militant fight against residential segregation. They have opened headquarters at Pythian Temple, 3137 Pine Street. At this place a stenographer has been employed to send out letters and assist in the campaign for the education of the people and the collection of funds. She has sent out 4,000 letters of appeal, and assisted in the distribution of 20,000 pieces of literature. She is now sending special letters to all of the white ministers, lawyers, doctors, business men, etc. A list that will number 5,000. This is the truth might have a hearing among thinking people with regard to the segregation question.

Will the people of this city stand by one organization and help it to succeed? Or will they have two organizations, neither with the strength it must have to accomplish the desired end.

This disposition to pull apart and have factions is one of the worst aftermaths of slavery. The master taught his slave to be apprehensive of his fellows, to mistrust them, to dislike them—this, in order that they might not get together and plot to overturn the plantation; or perhaps take charge of the state as they might, have done, for in some states they were in the majority. It is nothing but this slavery legacy that this thing has become a heritage that has cursed us for generations and will perhaps do so for generations to come. It will no doubt take 244 years to undo that which it has taken a similar length of time to do.

Will not the intelligent people of this city show themselves to be a unit for once in this great struggle in the history of our civilization? Let us lay down petty differences and personalities. They have no place where great battles are to be fought and won. "A house divided against itself cannot stand." We must all fight together, or we will be segregated together as a result of personal animosities, a division of our forces, and ultimately defeated in our efforts.

Kathryn M. Johnson, Field Agent, National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

NEW METHOD TO REMOVE GREASE FROM HAIR AFTER TREATMENT

Miss Daisy English, proprietress of the Modern Hair Dressing Parlor, at 1822 N. Franklin, has discovered a method for treating the hair which leaves it fluffy and greaseless, giving a natural effect. The preparation is absolutely harmless and is a boon to many ladies who have heretofore objected to hair treatment because of the greasy after-effect. Miss English uses the Molar system, gives first treatment, on ordinary work, for 50 cents, and box of oil free. She reports a constantly increasing business and offers tempting inducements to young ladies who wish to demonstrate her new preparation.
